Annotated games should be typed in columns not more than $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches wide. Other articles, crosstables, stories, etc may be $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches wide, 5 inches wide, $8\frac{1}{2}$ inches wide, or the full 11 inches wide. Anything wider or narrower will be returned for retyping. This may hurt your feelings, but it is grossly unfair (as many apparently do) to expect the editor to retype your material to fit into the proper space.

The following is extracted from the magazine, CHESS IN NEW YORK STATE, March 1973 issue:

The Education of a Chess Player

Saturday. 9:00 A.M.

Well, here I am, I can hardly wait for the first round to start. What a lot of weird-looking people: I'll bet everybody thinks I'm a beginner who barely knows how the pieces move.

Won't they be surprised when I win all my games?

Saturday. 10:45 A.M.

Bow careless of me! I must remember to watch out for my Queen in future games. I should be able to win the rest if I only watch out for my Queen. Before every nove I'll ask myself: "Will this move lose my Queen?" . . .

Saturday. 4:30 P.M.

Wouldn't you know it? Out of fifty players, I had to play one that knows the Glucco Plano better than I do. But at least I didn't lose material. If I keep on playing my usual game, my luck is bound to change.

Saturday. 10:30 P.H.

1 think I know what the trouble is. I'm too nervous. Normally I play well enough to win most of the time, but the strain of playing in a tournavent has upsot me. I'll do better after a good night's sleep. NORTHWEST CHESS is distributed by third class mail, usually by the 5th day of the month of issue. My opponents are getting weaker, at any rate. This one didn't even know how to mate me. He just kept queening pawns for no reason. I ought to get a really easy opponent for the last round. Sunday. 2:30 P.H. Who do I play? Why, that's not fair! He already has alf a point. I'm going to complain to the tournament half a point. director! Saturday, 9:30 A.M. Well, here I an again. Nost of these people look familiar. There's the tournament director who yelled at me last this. I suppose the first round will be late again. Probably nobody recognizes me. If they do, they probably think I'm going to play like last time. They don't know that I've been reading that book about "traps" in the openings!

Won't they be surprised when I win all my games? . . .

Walt Gentala tells this interesting story from his Denver days that will probably make us all a little more tolerant delays in receipt of our chess prizes. of of the building. As the chess buffs arrived, were admitted by the they after-hours guard who directed them to the action.

One weekend, our official, who was a vice-president, held a five round Swiss, with above average entry fee and as it turned out, there were a lot of players in attendance.

The first round was paired, and our combatants took up the royal battle; that evening, when the third round and adjourned games were finished, the banker closed up shop, and in the wee the morning, walked hours of into his suburban home.

Where he was summarily gunned down by his wife, who only did what many another chess widow I'm certain has dreamed of doing.

Needless to say, all of the tournament money, being on his person at the time, was tied up for months, while "due process" ran it's course.

When my friends(and humourers)chide me for devoting so much space-in both this column, and on the pages of my mag, Morphy's Madness- to the escapades and sketches of skittles bums that I know,I refer them to the words of another chess chronicler,George Walker, who said, more than 100 years ago: "...eshall I suffer my contemporaries all to pass away like a vision, without a faint attempt at least to catch and a vision, vision a faint atompt a fast of the carvas-or the page The greatest living chess players are around me at this moment-men linked to me in the strong bonds of our magic masorry; and I catch the inspiration imparted by their presence. That which man has done, man may do. Were Philidor to come again in his strength, like the Cid who rose from death to smite the Moors for Spain, is it altogether certain that we could not find a champion to meet him in the lists?"

Caught the chess Grandmaster episode of the "Columbo" series a month or so ago, and wondered if the lean, hard-driving, unsentimental, money-minded, singularly motivated young GM (Played by Lawrence Harvey) was intended to be indicative of anyone IN PARTICULAR.

Having been a steady follower of "Columbo"since it's incep-tion, I was especially disappointed by the "AYN-RANDIAN" simplicity of opposing personalities of the two contenders for the world chess title.

On the one hand, the heavy-jowled, jocular ex-champion, to whom the title meant nothing more than another exquisite taste of the good life;stereotype of the kindly, compassionate Renaissance personality.

Then there is the present champion, described in the first paragraph, who will stop at nothing, let alone murder, to retain his title, which was won(of course) by default. Natural-ly we can't ascribe the highly valued virtues of talent and hard work to such a blackguard.

Differences as pronounced as total black against total white are fine for chess pieces, but a bit naive when applied to people.

one thing we understood was why our IBM, murderer hero But scowled throughout the entire show. In the opening scene, he played a game with the nice guy contender in a cafe with a set improvised from kitchen accoutrements. Who wants to be mated by an AVOCADO?

NORTH-PACIFIC CHESS ASSOCIATION --- TD: Terry McKibbin

The NPCA will be holding tournaments monthly and will be trying out some innovative ideas, with the hope of keep-ing the majority of chess players happy, both with the pairings and the prizes.

In an effort to keep the lower-rated players satisfied and the top guys from complaining about encouraging medi ocrity, this TD is going to give a whirl to Jon Berry's suggestion of rating prizes being open-ended at the bot-tom, starting with THE TRIAL OPEN in May of this year. The way that system works is that a player (say a Class C) who makes a higher score than a Class B player will be able to 'move up' and claim the Class B prize. Likewise, a Class A player could move up and pre-empt an Expart prize. This writer feels that the quality of play, at all levels, will become sharper and more competitive with this added incentive of winning a better prize. Alwith this action inclusive of winning a cover prior in so, the upper players might have to greater attention to his play, as some Class B might be threatening to make off with the higher prize. There seems to be more equity to awarding prizes on scores rather than on rat-ing groups. Comes the question about a lower-rated play er happens to get easy pairings due to the large number of players in a tournament.

In all NPCA tournaments where the number of players can not be handled adequately with the conventional Swiss pairing system, accelerated pairings will be used. The greater the number of players, the more the acceleration; for the purposes of producing a clear winner and to pro-vide a higher grade of competition. If a straight Swiss system is used for a great number of players, the result is many game winners but very little competition.

A bit more on prizes. In all NPCA tourneys, there will be a limit of one prize per player. (The prizes go further that way.) For the sake of clarity, a prize of, say, 'two chess books' is one prize. Same goes for a prize of 'Trophy +....' If there is one prize for a group, that group must have at least three players and if there are two prizes for a group, that group must have at least six players, or the prizes for that group will be adjusted accordingly will the deducted amount of the prize being re-distributed to a larger prize Any player who finds himself in a group by himclass. salf will be placed, prize-wise, into the next lowest rating range, and the prize-wise fund adjusted accordingly. I agree with Bob Karch about not giving 'appearance money' to a sole player in a rating group.

I would appreciate any and all comments on the above play ing conditions, and all suggestions sent to me will be given careful consideration.

A banner month. I have not checked oack but I am sure that this is a record number of events for a month (yes I know that some of these are puite old). It's great to see so much chess activity out there. Keep it up.

In response to requests here are the official JOF rating fees once again, and my suggested changes. It feels like I do this every month but I guess it has been awhile.

ICF RATING FEES

2-15 players, β 1.00 (US). 16-30 players, β 2.00. 31-45 players, β 3.00. 45-50 players, β 4.00. 61 and up, β 5.00. Separate sections of the same event can be counted together but not separate events.

Liese days we have some very large events and the 45.00 top is no longer reasonable. By suggested rates, for those of you who want to observe them, extend the $\frac{3}{40.00}$ per 15 players upwards indefinately: a 141-player event would be $\frac{4}{10.00}$. I also suggest that the fee per 15 players be $\frac{4}{10.00}$ for events of 9 or more rounds. I will put these suggestions up to a vote at the next general meeting. For now I of course will honor the officient rates.

Maybe he wanted to see if Wade had the proper technique. To make sure you have the proper technique give it a workout with the following study by Grigoriev.

No. 11. Gorgiev: This form of the study where one side has a large prepondererance of material is called a Grotesque. It is controversial because it is not in accord with the dictum laid down by the father of the Soviet School of Composition, Troitzky, who held that for a study to have artistic merit the central idea, or theme, must be expressed with the minimum number of pieces needed to do so. To illustrate this I will give the study from which No. 11 was evolved: wKc2, wN's d2, f3; bKa2, bBa1, bP's b6, b7, d5. 1. Nb1 b5 2. Nd4 b4 3. Nb5 b3ch 4. Kd2 d4 5. N5a3 b5 6. Kd3 6. ... b4 7. Kxd4 ba 8. Nc3 mate. The study is unsound, 3. ... d4 4. Nxd4 b3ch 5. Nxb3 b6! draws. Now for the solution to No. 11: 1. Nal d5/1 2. Nf4 d4 3. Nd5 d3ch 4. Kf2 4. ... f4 5. N5c3 d5/11 6. Kf3 d4 7. Kxf4 dc 8. Ne3 mate.
1) 1. ... f4 2. Nxf4xd5xb4 mate, 1. ... c3 2. Ne3 mate.
11) Obviously there are several duals (alternate solutions) hereabouts as white has lots of tempo moves. According to the Troitzky view of things, the earlier study, if sound, would be artistically the better study even though it took less effort to compose it.

No. 12. Prokes: 1. Ke3/1 Bxc2 2. d4 dc 3. Kd2 and the pawn queens. 1) 1. d4? dc 2. c4 Kf1 and black queens first. Prokes (pronounced prokesh) composed hundreds of these short solution natural studies. Many consider the lack of introductory play a serious defect in his work, however, the "Player's Composer" has no lack of supporters!

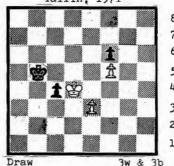

No. 13. Pogosjants: A tough study if you didn't get the right idea which is to gain time for the king to get over to protect the wPg6. 1. h7ch Kh8 2. b3/1 Bcl/11 3. g3

DAVID L. BROWN 204 Irving Ave. Rockford, Ill. 61103

One of the prime difficulties encountered by a few of the solvers lies in not examining ALL Black defences. If even a single move of Black stops white from giving mate in the specified number of mones, then another key must be found. Many are sending in wrong keys which are easily defeated. So, check ALL Black moves before accepting a key.

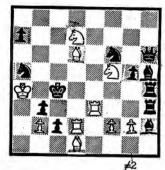

Regarding No.33, this is a correction of No.28 from last month. As you will have noticed, there should have been a Black Rook on h4 (this was mentioned in the written material). Because this error in printing allows several unintended solutions, including a mate in one, No.28 is VOID with NO points given or deducted. An advance apology to those who spent time on this, but hopefully you will understand that this would otherwise cause complications. Possible score for April is now 29.

Below are the accumulated scores for solvers through the first three months. The underlined number is the highest possible score for the month:

No.18 (Lepage) 1.Se2 This is the Rupp theme, a key which simultaneously pins a White piece and a Black plece, both of which are unpinned by a Black defence mov-ing to this newly vacated square. No.19 (Brown) 1.Kb4 was the intention, unpinning both the WQ and the BP as well as giving a flight. Unfortunately, there are two cooks: 1. Qxc2+ and 1.Sxd4. These are good cook examples: as one captures a major Black piece and gives check, while the other has only one weak variation. Obviously, these make for poor solutions and the solver should try to find the much more interesting intention of the composer. This Problem was worth 9. points, including 3 each for the key and the two cooks. Only Edward French found both cooks. BOOK REVIEWS

The following are brief reviews of books pertaining to studies and endgame theory. All but the first are available through USCF.

Imagination in the Endgame, Robert Brieger, Chess Digest, Dallas, 1973. 56pp. $2.50

This book might have been called "Endgame Movies" as there is a diagram every two moves. For an easy in-troduction to studies it is hard to beat. Unlike many endgame books intended for the beginner, it does not bog down in trivial studies. Of course, the material is el-ementary. Brieger takes studies, or parts of studies, which illustrate a single theme (with some very good choices), and spreads them out in a multiple-diagram form that is easy on the brain and easy on the eyes. It is gratifying to see an American write a book on the endgame after such a long interim (the last was Chernev's Practical Chess Endings, 1961). A must for the collector as there are several studies not available elsewhere.

Basic Chess Endings, Reuben Fine, David McKay Co., New York, 1941. 573pp. $3.75

There is probably more busted analysis in this book than in any other chess book in print. Considering the size and scope of the book it is quite understandable in a first edition. According to Evans, Fine is contemplating a revision--after 32 years and several reprints! For all of the errors, though, it is still probably the best endgame book for the tournament player (in English, that is). It is cheap, it is comprehensive, and, most importantly, it is didactic. Fine gives a pretty good exposition of the stategical principles involved in play-ing endgames. Endgame analysis (whether correct or faulty!) slips from the mind unless it is frequently reviewed. (Any questions as to how I know this are strictly out of place!) Second best to having the exact analysis memorized is having the correct principles memorized, and these are pretty easily absorbed from ECE. Ken Smith is coming out with a translation of Averbakh's three volume work in Russian after which we can put BCE in a museum, a relic of the good old days when they sold baloney by the pound and Fanny was a girl's name.

Rook Endings, G. Levenfish & V. Smyslov, Chess Digest, Dallas, 1971. 224pp. $6.95

This is a translation of the Russian work published in 1959 (2nd Edition). I consider this to be everything that Fine's chapter on rook endings should have been. The word "classic" has been overused so it probably won't mean to much to you when I apply it to this book. It really fits, though. There is no other book that treats practical rook endings as well as this one (for a sample look to the right). It does not give as thorough a treatment of the basic R & F v. R as does Cheron, but mastery of that ending is often of little help when the situation you are faced with is that of attempting to draw when the opponent has a passed pawn on the wing. As I indicated above, hard analysis is often not enough. One must be able to analyze the position at hand. A book like Rook Endings comes in mighty hendy in such cases.

Rook Endings

PAWNS ON ONE WING

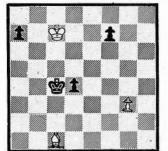

When all the pawns are on one wing the defensive possibilities are greater. However, to make proper use of his chances a player must be familiar with the ways of playing such endings and with certain critical positions. This will make his choice of this or that move during the game easier.

A Pocket Guide to Chess Endgames, D. Hooper, G. Bell & Sons, Ltd., London, 1970. 197pp. $5.00

The position at left is tal en from this book and is typical of the sort of endgames Hooper covers, 1.e. simple positions only.

1234 Modern End-Game Studies, M.A. Sutherland & H.M. Lommer, Dover, New York, 1968. 358pp. $3.00

A corrected reprint of the 1938 classic. Many of the most famous studies are in this. One of the two best anthologies ever.

360 Brillant and Instructive Endgames, A.A. Troitzky Dover, New York, 1968. $2.00

Another Dover reprint of a famous study book. Only this time it's an inferior version as missing are the 61pp. treatise "2N's v. P's", Troitzky's valuable thematic index and a short biography of him. The studies and Troitzky's notes still make it a great book.

WESTERN BRITISH COLUMBIA CHESS

The following is a letter received by your B.C. Section Editor from Jim McNee, President of W.B.C.C. and BCCF representative for New Westminster.I feel that the intent and content of this letter are so important to B.C. chess-players(especially Coastal) that I should take the liberty of printing it here. The letter is intended to be informational, not contentious.If, however, the President of the BCCF feels that a reply or clarification is required, he is invited to send that reply or clarification to me for publication in the June issue of NWC. $Q, \mathcal{J}, \mathcal{W},$

COMPETITION OR COMPLEMENT?

Last fall, a new chess organization was formed in the Lower Mainland known as Western British Columbia Chess.Originally, it was formed over a disagreement with the aims of the BCCF, but today , most of the disagreements have been settled. Instead, new aims, different from those of the BCCF, have given WBCC new life.

Our main aim is to promote tournament play for the new and average player.We felt that the majority of players were not chess geniuses like Suttles, Biyiasas, and Zuk, but were B, C, and D Class players.

CHILLIWACK CHESS CLUB CHAMPIONSHIP.

Ken Freed, of the Chilliwack C.C., tells us that the Club has completed the seventh round of its II-man round-robin tournament.

The	present	standings	are :-
I. Ken	Freed		7-0
2.Nick	Remple		5월-1월
3-4 B.C	Good and	G.Culbert	5-2

Most of them play for the fun of it. They aren't often attracted to tournament play due to high entry fees, little chance of winning, and the seriousness of play. The BCCF tournaments tended to attract top players due to money-making opportunities. Nowhere was this more true than in the Lower Mainland. The WBCC decided to create an organization for the average woodpusher, with tournaments designed strictly for them. It was a success from the start, and we are gaining an average of 30 members a month.

We have less costs, so we can charge only $2.00 for Adults and $1.00 for Seniors and Juniors per year. Our tournament entry fees range from free to a maximum of $3.00. We have our own rating system and we can rate any type of tournament we like. It is the freedom of being a separate organization that allows this range. One-day tournaments have been a great success.

The WBCC has been able to fill in gaps that the BCCF cannot or will not. If the BCCF opts to support a CFC magazine in favour of NMC, the WBCC can possibly keep alive the close co-operation between Washington, Oregon, and British Columbia.Definitely, the WBCC and BCCF should not be bickering. Two strong organizations can only mean better chess play in B.C.

It brought IO new adult BCCF memberships, and 34 junior BCCF memberships. Tournament -Director Dave tied best C Gooden, with assistance in publicity and pairings from the Kelowna Chess Club, did a fine (runners-up job, especially for his first) (in division The Tournament was held in The Tournament was held inthe spacious library of Shuswap Junior High School . Provision was made for those staying overnight (the gym was used as a sleeping area, the players bringing theirown sleeping bags and air-mattresses). In the Adult section, interest grew as the Fourth round began. Al Knodel, White against George Riddell, had a chance at first place if he won.He would then be playing Alex Wood (due to colour alternation) in the last round. If George won, however he would have the chances, and would be White in the fifth against Mike Westbrook (once again, due to the colours). In all events, George did win, so he had to play Mike (rather than Alex, with the same score). The interest was not over, though, because the outcome of the Riddell-Westbrook game would affect the standing of A.Wood, who beat Bill Purtell in the last round.Were Mike to win, he and Alex would be tied first: if Mike drew, George and Alex would be tied first.He lost, and Alex took clear second. In the final standings, the tie-break method used was first the Solkoff, them the Median. All three major cities sending players were represented in the top quarter of the table. In the vast Junior section, a sixth round was needed (and judging by tie-breaking, perhaps a seventh would have been in order had time permitted). The tie-breaking here was first the Median, then the Solkoff, and if necessary, the Sonnenborn-Berger, Prizes in the Junior section were as follows:-GRADE VIII to I8 YEARS OLD Ist. Ray Schulte $3 and trophy 2nd through to 4th. (tied) Norm Cook Mike Kennedy $2 each Tony Lavallee 5th. David Cawley Brian Cawley $.75 GRADE VII AND UNDER Ist. International Master Peter Biyiasas went through 1973 Portland Spring Open Chess Tournament unmarked. This was his second victory in two weeks(see elsewhere in this issue to see if he made it three) and also second victory over Clark Harmon in two weeks and with Black pieces this time.

The newly formed Salmon Arm

As stated in April NWC, accelerated pairings were used to give Biyiasas the highest rated players possible. I do not like springing things on players that they do not know in advance about, but there was notice in April issue that this would happen. I do like the results of accelerated pairings and most of the players like the results also. You will note that three top rated players lost in the first round, Brandenburg, Kiplinger, and Waterman. Maybe they were thinking as in a normal first round swiss event that the player across the board was going to be an easy mark. Some were afraid that accelerated pairings as explained in Official Chess Handbook were being used where you really have two different tournaments for a couple of rounds by not pairing any of the top half against the bottom half until round 3. But that is not the case with the way I paired this event. (See else where in this issue for full story on these new pairings.) 76 players was a good turnout but the sponsor only netted $11.00 after expens-20 The event was helped some by the publicity given it by J.K. Gill as the event qualified the top six to play in J.K. Gill Portland Closed May 5-6. Several of the unrated players listed are not really unrated for they played in their first Northwest event just in late or mid March so don't have a printed rating yet, Wadleigh, Hamill. The event was held in Heathman Hotel instead of Park Haviland, they are right across the street. Lighting was better but the room more stuffy and the Ironworkers cocktail party across the small hall got nosiy near the end. We will be back in Park Haviland for May 26-28 hope to see 150 of you then. JUDE ACERS VERSUS PORTLAND

At 10:08am on Saturday April 21,1973, Senior Chess Mas-ter Jude F. Acers of San Franciso made his first move on board 1 of a 117 board simultaneous, a World Record for number of players played all at the same time. It was 13 hours and 41 minutes later when he shook hands with the last player to resign. Acers played the exhi-bition without a break but did down 25 cups of coffee and 1 peanut butter sandwich.

The score at end of play was Acers 982 opponents 182, breaking down to 93 wins, 11 draws and 13 loses. The record event was held at Lloyd Center in Portland Oregon and all the opponents were from the Portland The Lloyd Center had 140 players signup, hoping area. for 120 players to take part but some no shows and some arriving late did not allow this. Event drew TV cameramen from all three Portland area stations. KOIN TV sent newsman Arnie Mason to play Mr. Acers.

Players ranged in age from about 10 years old to 60 including two women, Cinthia McBride and Ruth Stromquist. Miss Stromquist was the next to last player to fi- 18 PQB4 QQ1 nish and drew her game in a ending that she should have won. Other players who drew were Portland residents: Tony Miller, Mel Peterson, Bob Slayton, Paul Austin, Gerald Reiner, Don Nash plus high school students Dale Schwartzenhauer of Grant High, Jim Allen of Rex Putman Dav Wong of Cleveland High and Andrew Hodge of Benson High.

The players who won were: Mike Calcagno of Sam Barlo High in Gresham (He won in 21 moves when Acers overloo-1. ked a one move mate on King Rook Two), Richard Wood of Lincoln High and Mitchell Groh of Roosevelt High were 2. Lincoln Aigh and Mitchell Gron of Roosevelt Aigh were 3. the young players plus adults Bob Malone, Arvin Danger-4. ud, Mike Shank, Mert Bong, William Ballard, Chuck Cumm-5. ings, Gary Webb, John Wolf, and Steve Radosevich. At end of ten hours play 53 games were still in progre-7. ss, at 11 hour mark 46 games, at 12 hours 34 games and 8.

13 hours 19 games. The rules of the exhibition were that players could ha- 10. BxN ve either White or Black, move instantly when Mr. Acers 11. BR6 arrived at their board, the masters move on a board was 12. 0-0 not complete until he had made a move on the next board. 13. PB4 International Master Arthur Dake of Portland dropped by the exhibition and was heard to remark" An exhibiti- 15. PxP on of this type is very good for chess." He wished Mr Acers good luck when they shock hands. This was the first time the two had ever meet but Acers had played over a number of Dake's games. Oregon Chess Champion He wished Mr. 16. B-B4 19. Clark Harmon came by to watch. 20.

The event was held in the open area of the Lloyd Center 21. North Mall and drew lots of spectators. One could tell 22 just where the master was by looking for the largest 23 crowd of onlookers. It got dark about 7:00pm and the 24 lighting was not the best from then on. The rain gods 25 held off until the event was over but it was rather on 26 27 the cool side for last couple of hours. Bob Slayton of Lloyd Center Corp did a lot of work to 28 setup and promote the exhibition. He also played and was one of the last ones to finish. Russell and Kathy Miller were the monitors of the exhi- 31 bition and felt after the almost 14 hours that they had spent as much time on their feet as Mr. Acers in addit-ion to getting sunburned faces. Theirs was an easy job as there was 100% cooperation from the players. There was much discussion about Mr. Acers ability to continue play without any break. He never refused any coffee. The final game to finish went 40 moves about. When it wasoverMr. Acers remarked that he was ready for 200 boards next time.

The Dalles Open was sponsored by The Dalles Chess Club, they brought the trophies and American Chess Service who supplied the director. The club has about 30 members but most did not take part in the tournament. Those who did had a good time and will be better players for it. Comments on a couple of the players, Loren Delaney is older brother of Darrell, several years ago an active player in Portland area. Tim McClure is son of Al who about 12 years ago played tournament and postal chess. Tim and American Chees Service sponsored the Jet-Way Open, held at the Holiday Inn on old highway 99, near the Sea-Tac Airport. The event did not even attract enough entries for the guaranteed prizes, but everything promised was paid out. That is the meaning of "guarantee", and I expect all sponsors who use this word to be aware of the full implications.

Altho a financial failure, I consider that the tournament was a competitive success. International master, Canadian Champion, and Interzonal qualifier PETER BIYIASAS demonstrated his superiority. He met the strongest opposition of any player (2, 3, and 5), scoring 83% against them. The next five highest rated, who all tied for second, divided equally the $120. Other rating group prizes as shown.

The event introduced the accelerated pairing system as refined by ANGUS R. PITT, Ratings Statistician for the Boeing Chess Club. Briefly, there is a round zero in which the top half are presumed to have defeated the bottom half, and then this "result" is entered onto the pairing card and used for pairing purposes until after round 3. ANGUS PITT says that his system eliminates the round 1 farce of games between players who are rated 500/600 points apart.

Best way to assess results of using his system is to compare with similar-size crosstables in recent issues of MVC. The MW Jr (page 33, Feb 73), was also 54 players and was paired by the same director. There Walter Nelson, who won all games, only met one opponent in the top ten. In the Jet-Way, Biyiasas met three. the NW Jr, Nelson met #51 and #54; Biyiasas' lowest opponent was #34.

In the Emerald City Open (page 40, Feb 73), two players tied at 5-0 in a field of 54. This would not have happened, using the Pitt system.

The Eugene Open (page 77, Mar 73) showed a 3-way tie at 42 each in a field of 56. But the highest player #3 met was #8. In the Jet-Way, the top five all met either #1 or #2. Rupel #6 escaped, but he played the swiss gambit in round 1.

BOEING PAIRING SYSTEM

A Note On Accelerated Pairing-Angus R. Pitt

At the Seattle Spring Open at the Edgewater Inn 100 players were Harkness says the minimum number of rounds squeezed into a swiss! is the square root,= 10! And two more if you wish to determine a second and third place.

In five rounds it was not surprising that there was a first place tie between two players who had not played each other. It was possible for four players to be so tied with a perfect score. Moreover, the influx of new players has put the rating gap between At this difference the first round opponents to well over 500. odds are 24-1 in favor of the stronger player. (Harkness.) The futility of the first round is therefore obvious.

I had this sort of thing in mind when I made a study of alternative pairing systems for the annual Boeing C.C. swiss, a 7 round affair in which we could expect 60 entries. A critisism has been made that any improvement you make in the first round pairings only puts off the evil until later rounds. Therefore, after rejecting alternative systems, I had to check this point with the chosen system which was to give one point to the upper half in round 0 (not played) and take it away after the fourth of the seven rounds. The first stage of the work was to tabulate the results of 380 B.C.C. games according to rating difference and rating of the strongest player. This enabled the chances of an upset or a draw to be determined for any game in a hypothetical tournament. With this "tool" and a table of random numbers, I "played" about six tournaments of 40 players. This did show a sharp increase in pairings with large rating dif. ferences at round five, but it only gave back a fraction of the amount gained in the earlier rounds. The following projection from the above work gives the numbers of games with a rating difference greater than 450 for the upper half of a 80-player five round swiss with the extra point deducted after round three

Lue excla	point deducted arcer	round childe.
	Rounds 1-3	Rounds 4-5	Total
OLD	40	10	50
NEW	20	15	35

The comparison is more in favor of the "new" system than the '15' shows because the weaker players who have got into the upper half are playing well above their rating.

I submitted some of my analysis to Bob Karch who invited me to tell the players at the start of the Jet-Way Open on March 31 what was in store for them. I had with me a wall chart comparing the Old and the New for tournaments of 64, 70, 80, 90, 100, 110, 120 and 128 players. Unfortunately, there were fewer players than the lowest number on my chart. However, the nine unrated players were put at the bottom of the list and a dividing line was drawn at 1500 (for class prize considerations) leaving 26 in the lower half and 28 in the upper half. The latter received their temporary gift of one point. The pairings were done as if a round had already been played and the first tournament (as far as I know), in the NW with an accelerated pairing system was under way.

Two comparisons were available immediately: 1) The top 13 players had opponents rated 338 points (average) below them, odds 71-1 in their favor. Under the old system this difference would have been 599 points, odds about 80-1; 2) The unrated players were matched against players with an average rating of 1420. Under the old system their opposition would have averaged 1624. These newcomers to tournament chess need the encouragement of pairings against weaker players in round one.

Play proceeded with the normal give and take. I am glad no one asked me to put money on the stronger players at the odds of $7\frac{1}{2}$ -1. In the upper half round one produced five upsets (3W,2D), all by players who would have been playing unrated players under the old system. In the lower half the four games between rated players went to the higher player. So did the top section games in round two.

At the end of round three there remained one player from the lower half with a perfect score. This "upstart" was in a pairing group with the 2200 to 2400 players. How did this 1421 player get there? Like eight of the thirteen in the 1499 to 1282 group, he won his first game. In rounds two and three he defeated 1576 and 1832 players. Clearly he was no longer a 1421 player! In round four he was paired against Johnny Walker (2234) and lost. He drew his last game against a 1871 player.

There is an important point for TD's to observe in pairing for rounds four and five. The perfect score and near-perfect score players from the lower half must not be paired down. The Harkness system drops the lowest player if the group has an odd number. Fortunately it is NW practice (ref-Russ Miller) to drop the middle player. The power of the accelerated pairing system could be seen in the final table: 1) no perfect score, 2) no tie for first place 3) of the five players tied for second place, the leading four had approximately equal opposition.

SUMMARY: The 5 round tournament with this accelerated pairing system, call it the "Boeing System" if you like, is basically a 6 round tournament without the first round farce and: 1) It would attract more 2000-plus players, 2) It is encouraging to new(unrated) players, 3) It is a challenge to 1300 and 1400 players, 4) The top prize money is not likely to be split, 5) Even in the last four rounds, the number of meaningless games is cut drastically,

6) Against the above points, there is a possibility that a player in the lower half will get more prize money than he would have otherwise.

Warning: The TD must check that the unrated players are not experienced tournament players without a rating. If they are, they should be put above the dividing line and possibly given an assumed rating.

LETTERS TO THE

Bob, Got my issue of NWC this month. I think its great and you are doing a great job. Your reorganization of the magazine is all to the good. I'd like to see more humour and the conclusion of Jon Berry's comic strip. It holds my interest. I agree with Suttles that there is human interest in "personality cult" articles.

Robert, you are doing a very fine job.

Dear NORTHWEST CHESS members.

Dear Roberts

Concerning the letters from Ms. D. N. Williams, IK Duncan Suttles etc; the basic nature of Chess, is, of course, elitist in character. However, it is irrational for the stronger players to expect that less proficient players will indeed support them. After all, there is nothing to be gained by such activities except the aggrandizement of mssrs. Suttles, EcCormick, et al. Obviously, chess can only develop in an atmosphere in which players of all strengths can find enjoyment and compensation.

The inflated class prizes may seen exorbitant now. But remember, if you will, it was not so long ago that these strong players fought it out for considerably less than what they get now. It is not that prizes are not higher now than before that irks them; it is that the prizes are not correspondingly larger than before. Their reasoning is faulty here, however; if, indeed, larger prizes will command larger participation, all the prizes will get bigger. A person who pays in excess of ten dollars for five games (not to mention incidental expenses) should be able to expect a prize that will at least provide just recompense. (Indeed, in cases of ties, there often isn't enough money to cover those espenses!)

The way to bigger prizes, Er Suttles, is through the increased participation of larger groups of mediocre players; this means that entry fees will provide larger prize funds. The presence of strong masters is also a factor in that participation, and if they want to withhold that participation for no other reason than damaged pride, then it again proves that the masters are less interested in the growth of chess than in personal monetary gain. Don't expect the rest of us to follow suit.

I myself am not a "professional" player. I play for fun and prizes mean nothing to me. But anything that will cause the growth of chess, which is my personal concern, is beneficial to all serious players. Fedogogic prima donnas are not in that interest; I hope my point has been well made.

Sincerely, SeC Duncan Secretary, MCF

I would like to express my view, as a 1700 rated player, on the lower rated players will not attend the major tourneys where our chance of winning is nil without class prizes. The class prize gives us something to shoot at while we try to improve to master as this is a long difficult process that most of us will never tically must beat out only a few other masters and top experts while a "D" class player might have to beat out 40 or more players to get in the money. In bowling and golf they give handicaps.

The effect of reduced class prizes will be reduced participation and therefore reduced too prizes. Anyway, the 1973 Northwest Open offers a first prize 50% higher than any Seattle tourney in 1971 not to mention the Chess Congress and the Comparable tourney of 1971 (Junfair Upen) offered 39% of the orizes to the top three while the 1 1 Joen offers 55%. Maybe we should do the complaining complete. Believe me with the competition for the class prizes, it is a real incentive to improve and in fact the masters realis-prize situation. The masters who have written are wrong! Us

Dear Robert:

THE EDITOR reat and you magazine is People who scan the rating lists

People who scan the rating lists will have noticed, particularly in the USCF list, an increase in the number of players rated below 1000, and ratings sinking to record lows. I try to picture Mary Jo Iorlano of New Jersey, rated 486. Is she just out of the cradle or does her withered hand keep dropping the pieces onto the wrong square?

Are these people really such duffers? When a 900 rated player goes into the end game against Mike Murray with good winning chances, I begin to wonder. Then you remember that 200 rating points difference represents a score of 3-1 and you figure that the 900 rated player is expected to lose 1-3 to a 1100 player who loses 1-3 to a 1300 player who loses 1-3 to a 1500 player who loses 1-3 to a 1700 player who loses 1-3 to a 1900 player who loses 1-3 to a 2100 player. At this rate a player who knows little more than the moves of the pieces must rate about 1000. Ah welli The kid (and many others like him) will have fun going up through the ranks - does it matter?

OF COURSE, IT DOES MATTER! These heavily under-rated players will be playing several hundred points below their true strength for years and the established players who are unfortunate enough to meet them will have their ratings brought down time and again. A player above 2000 is not imune even if he never plays one of these budding genii. He will be playing players who have had their ratings undermined by the rising tide.

Mark my word, if the system is not changed, the only players who will be above 2000 in a few years time will be a few of our better masters, the "players" who hardly ever play and a few of the aforesaid budding genii.

IMMEDIATE ACTION is required. Stop-gap measures are sometimes arbitrary, but they can be fair and much better than no action at all.

I suggest:

 All players below 1400 have their rating increased by half the amount that they are below 1400. To be applied once only. That is: 600 become 1000

800	become	1100
1000	become	1200
1300	become	1350, etc.
1400	and abo	we unchanged

2) No player be brought into the system at less than 1000 points.

S.O.R. - SAVE OUR RATINGS!

Angus R. Pitt Ratings Director Boeing Chess Club

P.S. I notice a sentence in Bruce Bailey's prologue to the March ratings. It says, "The rating rules will jump you up to 1200 the instant you start playing at that level..." Is this something new? Can Mary Jo jump from 486 to 1200 by winning a few games? Or is this a WGF only deal?

Dear Mr. Karch

I am writing in relation to the Chess Academy this summer. How much is it going to cost? I have room and board in the Seattle area. Also, you mentioned the possibility of an advanced course the following week. Is there going to be one? If so, how much will it cost? And do you have an idea or know where it is going to be? Thank you!

Robert A. Clark Eagle Point, OR

REFLY: The Basic Chess Course will be held at the ACS Seattle Facility 1135 North 96th for five days, from Monday through Friday, 18-22 June. Instruction will closely follow the curriculum given on page 28, November 1972 issue of NWC. The emrolment cost is $20 for adults, $15 for Juniors (under age 18). All materials will be provided, including some text books. - Your having room and board will help a lot, as I cannot (this year) arrange any package deal to include room and meals. I have, however, noticed a half dozen or more inexpensive motels within 6-10 blocks of the facility. - The Intermediate Level Chess Course (rating from 1600 to 1999) is tentatively planned for the month of August, at the same location and the same cost.

A four-member gang-Dan Ryan, Bill Schill, David Archei and Mark Wallace-came in from Juanita High School intent on winning and by the end of the second round, had the only perfect scores on the crosstable. Rounds three and four saw them fighting amongst themselves for the top spot, with Dan Ryan posting a 4-0 and claiming the 1st Place trophy. Well done. Dan!

The shortest game of the tourney was a seven-move Mate. Seems one player forgot to ponder what the opponent's Pawn was doing on KN4 so soon. Very speculative play on the part of the winner; but he was seen walking around cporting a big smile.

Prize winners: Dan Ryan, Bill Schill, Bob McCurdy, Sean Cain, David Archer, Earl Mintz, Jill Chase, Mike Markert and Mark Wallace. USCF and WCF memberships were awarded, along with books. Surprisingly, some of the winners opted to take books in place of a membership prize. This TD felt that the winners should be given some choice as to the kind of prize they want.

New USCF memberships or equivalent extensions of current memberships were awarded to all those with plus score. TD was Bob Karch, who used continuous pairings to get in four rounds (rather than "perfect pairings," but only three rounds). I feel that it is important in these small, informal, get-acquainted events that the players get an opportunity for as much competitive chess as possible. We also twisted the pairings a bit to avoid an early father-son meeting, but perhaps overdid it. I originally did not intend to play, but was asked to to "even it up." But then, there were latecomers, and irregular withdrawals, so that we never quite knew where we stood. Unfortunate was Chris Gentala's last round; his opponent simply disappeared without notice.

(See page 97, Apr 73 NHC for background story.) Karch won the city title, but narrowly on tie-break over Pat Hessen. Each was awarded $15 and trophy. If the pairings puzzle you, the first round was drawn by lot, due to the unusual circumstances of players continuing to register after everything was supposed "to begin!"

GORDON H. DICKSON won the Amateur Section 6-0, defeating Gary A. Uhl in the final round. Gordon got $30; each got a trophy. 30 entries, including two ladies.

MIGUEL NAJDORF - The Fountain of Youth

James Schroeder

Born April 15, 1910 in Warsaw, Poland. Tartakower was his teacher. Played on the Polish team in the International Team Tournaments in 1935, 1936, 1937 and 1939. When World War 2 came Najdorf was in Buenos Aires, where the Tournament was being held. He was one of many chess masters who stayed in South America. He changed his name from Mendel to Miguel and became a citizen of Argentina.

Some of the extremely petty chess players and officials in Argentina kept him from playing in their country's championship tournament for many years. The made a rule that any participant must be a citizen for three years. Then, when They Najdorf was, they changed it to five years. Still, some people there liked him, because I have read several times that he is now very wealthy. His style is super-attractive. Very aggressive and combinational. He has beaten all the best players in the world. In the area of the mating sacrifice he has no superior.

as no superior. His weakness is defensive play and the endgame. The ever youthful Najdorf has a perfect understanding of the principles of good chess. That's why he keeps playing well in the latest Opening variations. Better still - he invents the latest Opening variations. He was one of the first Masters to consistently play the Kings Indian Defense, and the Najdorf Variation of the Sicilian is correctly named.

In the 1970 match Free World vs USSR Najdorf made an equal score vs Mikhail Tal, 1 win, 1 loss, 2 draws.

He won many tournaments in the 1940's and was one of the few players deserving to be considered a possible world championship challenger.

His is an exuberant, extrovert personality. He loves to play rapid-transit chess (but I read that he is not such a good bridge player).

Taken from CHESS, a great magazine.

Why should it be bad? White's idea is to force Black to exchange Pauns in the center (... BPxQP) and thus open the diagonal for White's QBishop. Black has made this important exchange quite vol-untarily; it's like giving alms to a beggar! But there must be something wrong if a master does this kind of thing. If someone gives you a thousand dollars, you can be pretty certain he wants something in return. I thought I saw Black's plan: if 8 BQ2 then 8...00 9 BQ3 NQB3 10 00 BK2 and Black's plan of ... N/4-N5 is stronger now because of the passive position of White's B at Q2. If, after 8 BQ2 00 White develops his B at QB4, then Black replies... NN3 and White's QP is weak. So I played the natural move for White:) 8 QB2 NQB3 9 BQ3 NxN 10 PxN NxP ?? (A stunning surprise- I hadnt foreseen this move) 11 NxN QxN (Thoughts about intuition. When I'm playing a game against a master, I rarely make a prolonged study of the variation. I rely mostly on the intuitive correctness of chess ideas. One of the things I've learned through 25 years of tournament play is that a game is never lost without a definite mistake. Portisch played quickly and confidently; after 15 moves he had used only five minutes on his clock and was a Pawn ahead. When I lost the Pawn my first reaction was despair. Then I thought: Portisch has won this Pawn through playing a new move, introducing an entirely new concept in a variation which has been played hundreds of times. I say that if a new move is introduced there are two possibilities; either its a genius move, or its an idiot move. A genius is born every hundred years, an idiot every day. So its more likely that the new idea will be dubious than it should be good. After Black's 11th move I thought that he must be winning. Then my sense of position re-asserted itself and I began to realise that Black's development is dangerously backward and that White can obtain a strong attack for the Pawn) 12 BN5+! He's only two Pauns behind and has a tremendous advantage in development) RQ1 17 QR5! (I didnt take the KNP because I saw a beautiful winning line. The self-pin of White's KBishop is also a masked battery. If 17...BQ2? 18 QN5+ and wins) PB3 18 QXP (If 18...QxB 19 QxP+ KK1 20 BxP threatens 21 RxB. 21...QQ2 loses to 22 QN8+ etc) KB2 19 BK2 QKN4 (Now 20 BRS+? THE GUIDE

If you live anywhere near Seattle in the Puget Sound area, the new, the fresh, lively and FREE weekly SUIDE will become your regular source of information concerning chessic events in the area! The April 13th issue of this sorightly newspaper featured a three column spread, along with a picture of KANDY DEAN, "high ranking NA Chess ace."

We wish editor J. AIGHAEL KENYON loads of success in his publishing venture, and we roundly applaud his decision to provide a weekly report on chess activities! Remember, GO GUIDE, IT'S GREAT!
