So What Really Are Deadlines Anyway?

Actually, I want to try to clarify something that I think has been confusing for people for a long time. Ads are one thing, but articles, games, and photos are a whole other matter. If you have material (articles, games, photos) to submit, do it now! It doesn't matter what the date is... it doesn't matter what the deadline is. Whenever I get the material, I have it and can consider it for publication. Let me worry about which issue it goes into. I "can" put something in right up until the moment I get the issue finalized and sent to the printers, and in some exceptional cases, the online issue is different than the printed issue, though ideally, they aren't that different!

I recently interacted with a contributor of material who missed the June 5 deadline, and he therefore was going to give me nothing. I found this to be perplexing and frustrating! So, I came up with a sentence I think clearly expresses how I think people should think about this going forward. It's based on the old typing exercise, "Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their country." Here it is:

"Now is the time to submit material to the editor of Northwest Chess." Now that might sound insultingly simple, but it's basically the truth and the way it really is. Again, ads are different. But deadlines for most things don't apply to the average contributor of material. As editor, I have deadlines I must meet for printing; advertisers have deadlines (listed on page two) to meet so that I can meet the print deadlines, and events must be timely for upcoming tournaments. But most of what goes into each issue doesn't have deadlines so to speak. When you really get down to it, if you are moved/inspired to write and submit material, do it now. Why wait? Just submit it now! I think that will be the best way to think of things. Submitting articles, games, and photos can be fun too! Submit by emailing me at jeffreyroland9@gmail.com.

2022 WA vs BC Challenge Match

By Josh Sinanan, Team WA Captain

The sixth annual Washington vs British Columbia Challenge match took place at the Executive Airport Plaza Hotel in Richmond on the holiday weekend of July 1-3, 2022. The event was rescheduled from January due to the COVID-19 Pandemic and challenges crossing the US-Canada border last winter. The venue for the match was also changed from Victoria to Richmond, BC, to make it more accessible for the players and due to a good relationship between the Victoria Chess organizers and the hotel.

As has been the custom since 2019, the match was run as a single 15-player team Swiss match rather than multiple Scheveningen team matches. The shift was made to the team Swiss format for three primary reasons: 1) to enhance team spirit since it feels more like everyone is on one team, 2) to provide more opportunities for juniors to get experience against stronger players, and 3) to save on FIDE rating costs.

A team of fifteen Washington chess warriors braved the journey up to Richmond, BC for the match. Although heavily outrated on paper and facing a super strong BC team who had home field advantage, the Washington Team featured several strong up-and-coming junior players, led by high school phenoms WFM Anne-Marie Velea, NM Rushaan Mahajan, and Vignesh Anand. Washington State's second-grade all-stars—Ted Wang, Michael Lin, and Owen Xu—were particularly impressive, with Owen scoring two wins against higher-rated players and Ted claiming his first victory against an International Master! For the adult members of Team Washington it was a tough match, with several players wearing off the rust after two+ years of inactivity.

Despite a strong performance of 3.5/5 by WFM Anne-Marie Velea, Team Washington ultimately succumbed by a lopsided score of 26-49. Many of the games were quite close and could have gone either way, with BC catching the breaks in several key encounters. From the BC side it was IM Quang Long Le, who recently moved to Vancouver from Vietnam, leading the team with a perfect 5.0/5 score. National Master

Andrew Hemstapat, who is heading off to university this fall, drew his first game against Washington's Eddie Chang before going on a four-game winning streak, including a wild win versus Team Washington Captain Josh Sinanan in which he sacrificed a knight for a long-term attack. Eddie Chang, who was playing in his first tournament since 2006(!), scored a highly respectable 2.5/5 points, drawing against three higher-rated players along the way.

The match was organized by Paul Leblanc and directed by International Arbiter Stephen Wright with assistance from WFM Alina Calota. Many thanks to our gracious sponsors Sridhar Seshadri, the Washington Chess Federation, and Victoria Chess.

Position after 95...Kb7

96.Rxe5??

White assumes he reaches the famous (winning) Lucena position with Black's king cut off along the d-file. As we will see in the next note, chess is not so simple, and assumptions may be cruelly punished.

The actual (and non-trivial) winning plan here is 96.Re6! Kc8

a) 96...Ka7 97.Kh4 Kb7

a1) 97...Ka8 98.Nd7! Kb7 (98...Rxe4

99.Nc5+) 99.Nc5+-;

b) 96...Kc7 97.Nd5+ Kd7 98.Rxe5;

97.Rb6 Kd8 98.Rb8+ Kc7 99.Nd5+
Kxb8 100.Nxf4 exf4+ 101.Kxg4 Kc7
102.Kxf4 Kd7 103.Kf5 with the diagonal opposition and a winning king and pawn vs king ending.

96...Rxf6 97.Kxg4 Kc6 98.Rd5 Re6 99.
Kf5

Position after 99.Kf5

99...Rh6??

The fatal blunder, after which White does reach Lucena. Black simply does not have enough checking distance on the short side here. 99...Re8! creates sufficient space to check the king from in front. If White could reply by advancing the pawn to e5, the position is a win -- but that rook on d5 would be undefended. So Black wins a tempo (a d5-rook retreat) to begin the frontal defense: 100.Rd1 Rf8+ 101.Kg6 Re8! 102.Rd4 Kc5! 103.Rd5+ Kc6 104.Kf5 Rf8+ 105.Kg4 Rg8+ 106.Kf4 Rf8+ 107.Ke3 Rh8 (107...Kc7 108.Kd4 Rd8 is another trick, reaching a drawn king and pawn ending with the (distant) opposition: 109.Rxd8 Kxd8 110.Kd5 Kd7 111.Ke5 Ke7 112.Kf5 Kf7 113.e5 Ke7 114.e6 Ke8)

100.Rd1 Rh5+ 101.Kf6 Rh6+ 102.Kg5
Re6 103.Kf5 Rh6 104.e5 Rh5+ 105.Kf6
Rh6+ 106.Kg5 Rh2 107.e6 Re2 108.Kf6
Kc7 109.Kf7 Rf2+ 110.Ke8 Rf5 111.e7
Kc8

111...Rf3 brings into play the classic Lucena "building a bridge" maneuver. White wins: 112.Rc1+ Kb6 (112...Kb7 113.Rc4) 113.Rc4 Rd3 (113...Kb5 114.Rc8 Kb6 115.Kd7 Rd3+ 116.Ke6 Re3+ 117.Kf6 Rf3+ 118.Kg5) 114.Kf7 Rf3+ 115.Ke6 Re3+ 116.Kd6 Rd3+ (116...Re1 117.Rc8; 116...Kb7 117.Rc5 Kb6 118.Re5) 117.Ke5 Re3+ 118.Re4+-

112.Rc1+ Kb7 113.Rc4

White doesn't even need the bridge-building here: 113.Kd7 Rd5+ 114.Ke6 and promotes.

Letter To The Editor

Hi Jeff,

I've been thinking for some time that I am about burned out on chess cartoons. I'll be 80 this December, and I've been needing to devote more time to downsizing a life of collecting books and art, that no one in my family knows anything about, nor really cares to acquire. So, I have been working hard to find good homes for some of my better books and art. I want them to go to people who have a love of literature and art, while also trying to recoup some of the money spent on them.

I've loved working with you all these years and have appreciated your belief that what I submit is worth publication. But I know that if I were to try and carry on, I would not be as inspired, and it would eventually become a burden to me. I'm hoping that you might be able to reach out to some younger person with fresh ideas and allow them the opportunity to show their talent.

What has NOT grown old for me is chess, and I hope to still be pushing pieces as long as I have the strength to do so. You have been a great editorial partner, and I am going to miss working with you.

Brian Berger

Dear Brian,

It has been wonderful working with you as well. By the way, I nominated one of your cartoons for Best Cartoon again this year, so we'll see what happens. It's the one where the Knight says, "I played heavy metal before I played chess" or something like that... I'm going off memory for the exact words... Anyway, I really loved that cartoon and think it has a good chance at another prestigious award!

Well, I've kind of sensed this was coming. Nobody out there realizes more than me just how hard it is to do these things month after month, year after year, decade after decade... It's easy to do things now and then, but to be consistent, that takes something special, and you and I both have that, whatever that is!!

I know that you have really loved working on Northwest Chess for these past years... you have been wonderful for me. Having your cartoons has always been a super inspiration to me, and something I treasure very much that has been unique to Northwest Chess. I doubt anybody else had a cartoonist that came up with cartoons month after month, year after year like you did! I have matured over the years. Long ago (like in my 20's through 40's), this would have devastated me, however, because I feel so good at what you have done, and am so happy at the experience it has been working with your material, and the true friendship I know we have, that I am not sad or devastated at all... in fact, it makes me happy that you have come to terms with what you know you must do, and you did it. I realize it must have been hard to make such a decision, and I respect it very much.

I am so glad that you have been part of the team for all this time, and I am very proud of your work on the magazine all these years. I am so glad you drew the cartoon of me too (for my 100th issue) ... that was very special, even with the cigarette (I don't smoke!) I'll tell you right now, I have no clue or even idea of how to find a young cartoonist; you cannot be replaced!! But I will look, or maybe I'll try to learn how to draw myself, however, I don't think I have the talent for it, I appreciate the art, but I doubt I could actually do it!!

Anyway, I wanted you to know I am wishing you a great 80th year, and please know that I am so grateful for all you have done for me in the magazine over the years... I'm glad you still want to play chess.

I don't know if I want to do it, but is your email to me that I'm replying to here able to be published (like a letter to the editor)? It might be a good Segway for the readers for me to make a call to see if any young cartoonists want to take the plunge! :) Or at least to explain why there are no more new ones.

Again, I know I should be devastated at such a loss, but instead I'm just so happy for you that you have made a decision that you feel is right. And all I can think of is how great it was all those years to have had you on the team...

I'll probably work on another compilation book of all your cartoons... so we'll have three volumes instead of just two. I did discover a cartoon I missed in the first batch, so I might even do an update on the first two collections as well...

Do you know of any younger cartoonists... or how could I find one? Anyway, I'll wrap up my again, long-winded email and just say thank you for everything!! I am so grateful for what you have done for me all these years, that's all I can say... One of these days, I hope to get to Oregon again and see you. Travel lately has been impossible because my dog needs me, and I know my dog couldn't handle being in public like Morgan The Dog could do! :)

Jeff Roland

Jeff,

Thank you so much for the long and thoughtful email. You can sense that I was struggling with my decision, because deep down I still want to continue with the magazine but know that this is the right decision at the right time. As for my email to you being used as a letter to the editor, I think it a very fitting idea, and it will help to explain my sudden departure to those that might still be looking forward to my cartoons. The only person who comes to mind (besides yourself) is David Murray, who I know has collected a number of them, and even has used one on the cover of one of his notebooks.

Your idea to go ahead with another collection of my work pleases me no end, also your recent submission for Best Cartoon. You have been what all good editors should be, one who understands the people he works with and is quick to praise what is praiseworthy. Thanks again.

Brian Berger

WIM Megan Lee Simul

By Josh Sinanan

On Wednesday, July 6, the Issaquah Highlands Chess Club was honored to host Women's International Master Megan Lee for an exquisite evening of chess! The event took place at the beautiful Blakely Hall, located in the heart of the Issaquah Highlands, an urban village community in the foothills of the Cascade Mountains. Space was limited to 60 for the lecture and 30 players for the simul and was offered on a first come, first serve basis. At the courtesy of the Issaquah Highlands Chess Club and Washington Chess Federation, admission was free of charge. Complimentary pizza from Flying Pie Pizzeria in Issaquah was served along with Chessmen cookies to keep the players well fueled for the duration of the event.

The evening kicked off with a Q&A session in which Megan told her own personal chess story, offered tips for young up-and-coming players, and revealed several secrets to her success. This was followed by a lecture in which Megan presented two of her recent games focusing on prophylactic and positional themes, including a game from this year's National Open and a win against recently minted IM Anthony He! After a short break, the 30-player simultaneous chess exhibition began shortly after 7 PM. Players of all ages (spanning four to 73!) and ratings (unrated – 1873) participated in the simul, which lasted just over three hours! When the dust had settled, Megan won 18, drew nine, and lost only three games.

Megan graciously proposed to let her opponents play with any color they desired (a rare thing for simul), and many chose to play White against her. The friendly spirit of this simul, inspired by Megan Lee, was notable and different from other conventional simul in which the simul-giver feels they should play super-competitive chess even at the expense of good relationships.

Nearly half of the games were still going at 10:15 PM, at which point the simul wrapped up due to time constraints, and the games still going were adjudicated by National Master Josh Sinanan. Congratulations to the following players who scored a win or a draw against WIM Megan Lee! Draws were achieved by: Paul Lazarte (1873, North Bend), Gabriel Razmov (1639, Seattle), Chad Fondren (1587, Sammamish), Arnav Gadde (1477, Redmond), Artharv

Rastogi (1458, Issaquah), Andrew Kennedy (1379, Weston, FL), Henry Louie (1309, Mineral), Vayu Kakkad (1122, Seattle), and Karl Shiffler (unrated, Seattle). Wins were achieved by: Edward Cheng (1832, Seattle), Siva Sankrithi (1522, Lake Forest Park), and Dilan Ozusta (1517, Kirkland). We have included some of the more interesting games for the Northwest Chess readers to enjoy. Megan Lee graciously signed autographs and took photographs with the simul participants upon completion of their games. Stay tuned for more quality events like this hosted by the IHCC in the future!

About Megan Lee

Megan Lee is a 26-year-old Women's International Master and the number one ranked female chess player in the Pacific Northwest. She is a two-time (2020, 2022) Washington State Champion and earned the WIM title in 2013 at the age of 17. She graduated from the Rhode Island School of Design with a degree in graphic design and recently opened her own embroidery business based in Woodinville, Washington. Last February, Megan became the 2022 Washington State Chess Champion by besting a field of Washington's top-ten chess players with a dominating eight points from nine games!

 5.e5 d5 6.Bb5 Ne4 7.Nxd4 Bd7 8.Bxc6
 bxc6 9.0-0 Bc5 10.Be3 0-0 11.f3 Ng5
 12.f4 Ne4 13.Nd2 Nxd2 14.Qxd2

This was the end of my “prep” in the sense that I’ve played the Scotch Gambit enough times in my chess career that up until this point was familiar and I felt fine.

14...Bb6 15.Nb3 Qe7 16.Rfe1 Rad8 17.Rad1

Silly move. Didn’t properly anticipate Bg4.

17...Bg4 18.Rc1 c5 19.h3 Be6 20.a4

This was dubious and likely weakened my position but fit into my eventual plan of Qa6 once the bishop retreated.

20...d4 21.Bf2 c6 22.a5 Bc7 23.Qe2 Rd5 24.Qa6

Yay! My plan actually came to pass! I felt pretty good here as I felt my pieces were reasonably active and I had a decent plan moving forward, especially considering my much stronger opponent was playing 30 games and this position was ripe with tactics.

24...Qx7 25.Qxa7 Qe7 26.c4

Position after 26.c4

I passed (we were allowed three for the entire simul) the first time Megan came around before this move because I really needed time to calculate deeply here. That said, this was the first moment in the game where I felt I was better and possibly winning.

26...dxc3 27.Rxc3 c4 28.Rxc4

This was a tricky move for me too because I was worried about the discovery on my rook after she moved hers. That said, I really liked the idea of Rxc6 putting pressure on the c7 bishop and ideally getting my rook on the seventh.

28...Rb5 29.Rxc6 Bxb3 30.Rxc7 Qd8 31.e6

Now I’m confident I’m winning this game, theoretically speaking anyway, fully aware that her endgame play far exceeds my own.

31...Qf6 32.e7 Re8

I totally missed 33.Qa8 in this position while playing, which seems to win much faster in hindsight, but I felt in the moment 33.Rd7 would still convert my advantage seamlessly.

33.Rd7 Qc6 34.Rd8 f6 35.Bb6 Kf7 36.Rxe8 Qxe8

All in all, it was a lovely game and an even more wonderful experience for me to play Megan in this format, where I have a chance at a result despite her being a much stronger player. Experiencing it with both my boys on either side of me made it even more thrilling. I felt I played quite well and was able to execute my plans reasonably, even if there were some dubious moves in between. Cheers!

Reflection On My Nationals

By IM Anthony He

The National Chess Championships are prestigious scholastic tournaments that are held annually by US Chess. They have a long history, and many well-known players left their marks on the Nationals in the early days of their chess careers, such as US Champions GM Hikaru Nakamura, GM Fabi Caruana and GM Sam Shankland.

My first National was the 2012 Elementary Championship held at the Gaylord Opryland Resort And Convention Center in Nashville, Tennessee. The experience was unforgettable. I remembered the tournament hall was so big that I always worried I could get lost and miss my game if I went to the restroom. On the front central stage, there was a mountain of trophies, many of which were even taller than the seven-year-old me. More than 2,000 players competed and many already had a high rating of US Chess 1500 in my K-1 section. I basically played in awe with a 900 rating at that tournament and couldn't believe till today that I finished with a perfect score of 7.0/7, and won my first National Champion title.

Success in Nationals usually serves as a big motivator for young players. I played every elementary Nationals since then from 2013-2016 and won several blitz and bughouse awards except championship in main events although I was very close every time. Each year there may be new challengers coming up.

I made good progress in 2017 and achieved my FM title, thanks to my excellent performance in the tournament of the Washington State Championship, along with the magical powers of K40. I attended the K-12 championship section in that year's Super National VI. My highlight of the tournament was my round three win over top seed IM Andrew Tang, who was close to his GM title at that time. However, I lost two games in a row later and didn't get a satisfactory result. I was a sixth grader back then, I still get a lot of chances in the future, right?

Having been used to the classic Nationals for so many years, I started taking them for granted. I didn't participate in any middle school Nationals and thought I would just play Nationals again in my high school years. Well, we all know what happened in 2020 and 2021—pandemic hit, and Nationals got canceled. Yes, sometimes we don't value what we have had in our lives until we lose it!

Time fast-forwarded to 2022, ten years after my first National and I am now a high school junior. Hard to believe I haven't been to Nationals for almost five years! The main event of the 2022 Nationals started on Friday, but the Blitz tournament was on Thursday. Therefore, I traveled to Memphis on Wednesday, and this would be my first trip since the pandemic. Soon after I arrived, I took a look at the playing hall, and the familiar old days came back to me. Yep, this is still the same classic Nationals in my memories from all those years ago. US Chess staff had already started working on setting up the tournaments and I even met some friends that I hadn't seen for years!

With a 2536 blitz rating, I was the number one seed in the blitz tournament. After the first four rounds, four players still had perfect scores. The situation would favor me greatly if I won both games in round five. However, having won the blitz championship a few times previously, I was overconfident and played recklessly in round five, assuming my "experience" would just win me the game. Instead, I basically got crushed. Fortunately, I was able to win the last game against Nico Chasin, and luckily achieved my goal of becoming the 2022 National High School Blitz Champion by getting 11.0/12.

The main event attracted over 1000 players to compete in six sections. Being second seed player, I could understand both my winning chances and losing pressure. Based on my previous national experiences and the lessons I learned from the blitz tournament, I knew I needed to be concentrated and to be patient in dealing with my tough opponents.

My first two games on Friday were relatively smooth and I got 2.0/2. Top seeds were holding up well on the first day. Three more rounds were scheduled on Saturday. It was also called the "brutal" Saturday as theoretically we could play up to 12 hours of chess and have only one hour of break between rounds. We squeezed time to eat and prepare for the stronger and stronger opponents. If my goal was to compete for the championship title, I needed to do well on Saturday.

In the third round I was paired against Nathaniel Shuman from New K-1 Champion Anthony He in 2012. Photo credit: Xuhao He.

York City who was one of my chess friends. I got to know Nathaniel probably in some Nationals back in 2015. We and many other chess kids usually would have “party” after the closing ceremony, playing bug house or blitz, and throwing footballs inside the big playing hall. It had been kind of a tradition of the Nationals at this point. In terms of the game itself, Nate played a classical Sicilian variation that I used to play as Black, and I was able to capitalize on a blunder he made and won.

The fourth round, I faced NM Bijan Tahmassebi from Maryland with black pieces. It was a tough fight, but eventually I had a successful attack on his King in a Taimanov.

After four rounds, some top players started giving draws and only about ten players were left with a perfect 4.0/4. In the fifth game, I was paired against NM Ladan, Nicholas from Chicago with white pieces. I won a pawn quickly and entered a minor piece endgame, which seemed winning but not easy at all. Nicholas defended very well, and we played for almost four hours until I found a way to penetrate. On board one, Arthur had an advantage, but his opponent, Vishnu Vanapalli, defended well and held a draw. Therefore, after an exhausting day, I was the only one that was unscratched with a perfect 5.0/5. At this point, all I cared about was getting rest for the next day.

I woke up in the morning and decided to “surprise” Arthur with a Caro-Kann in my sixth game, which backfired as I found myself confused by the fifth move. After some complications, I cracked under time pressure and eventually lost the game. The loss to Arthur put me in a dangerous position, as I was now tied with a lot of people at 5.0/6, and behind two people with 5.5/6. Despite this though, I was not too worried as I was confident I could win the next game no matter the opponent.

In the last game, I was paired against the talented Adi Murgescu. The opening was unappealing to say the least, but I tried hard and eventually managed to find a way to crack Adi’s super solid position with some help of inaccuracies. After my opponent resigned, I learned I was one of the players who had final points 6.0/7. Thankfully, I was able to achieve my goal of winning the dual champion/co-champion in the High School Nationals, a great and worthwhile experience!

In spite of the excitement from the High School Nationals, I started to realize that the experiences I gained and friendships I built from the Nationals are greater than the titles, medals, and trophies. Chess and the national tournaments brought us together when we were seven or eight years old (or even younger for some players). It’s amazing to see some of these childhood friends still play chess after so many years. They’ve not only become very strong chess players, but also grown into well rounded young men who are ready to open their books of life to the new chapter. I have deep appreciation for all our chess players, the US Chess Federation, volunteers, our chess coaches, last but not the least, our chess moms and dads. They make chess part of our lives!

Position after 13...Nf6

This move order is imprecise as my queen gets to d3 in one tempo. 13...Bb7 If he wanted to do what he did in the game this move order is just better as it prevents Qd3 due to Nc5 and also retains ideas related to f5. 14.Qd3 (14.Qd1 Nf6 (14...f5!? possible, but not sure if it that great here) 15.Nc3 And now my queen will need to spend another tempo to get to d3) 14...Nc5

A careless move, as now this move puts me under eternal pressure under the c-file, and threats with b6–b5 become very prevalent. 17.Bg5 This move made a lot more sense, but I wasn't sure about the trade of the dark squared bishops. 17...Ng4 18.Rad1 Rfd8 19.Qe2±

Carol Kleist Feisty In Chess And Life

By John Selsky

No eating at the chess board! As the “den mother” of our casual chess evenings, Carol could be commanding. I learned this soon after I began turning up about five years ago.

SCC Board member Chad Boey said, “She was the first person to greet new people who came to casual nights at the club. She was always there with her welcoming smile. You could forget about your problems and just play chess in the atmosphere she created there.” SCC Board member Austin Cluff agrees: “She was the first person I met when I came to the club, and she was the one I played the most—two or three games every Wednesday for a couple years. She taught me a lot about chess, including endgames.” I learned a lot about chess and chess etiquette from Carol. She took it seriously—it was touch move and little talking even in her casual games.

August Piper, long-time SCC President while Carol was Secretary, commented, “She was someone we all knew and loved. She was feisty and would defend her ground with vigor. (I saw some heated sword-clashes between the two of them at Board meetings. They knew how to push each other’s buttons.) She devoted herself to the oeuvre of chess—and to the club. She and Fred made for a powerful ‘duumvirate’.”

Karen Schmidt’s article mentions that Carol taught in the Seattle Public School system for some years. When she retired she took on the daunting tasks of a chess organizer. In the late 1990s and early 2000s she was the Tournament Coordinator for the Washington Chess Federation, where she would handle the myriad of logistics involved in mounting big (and small) tournaments. During this time she was also Secretary of the Seattle Chess Club. Carol took the SCC Board minutes diligently for many years, and she enjoyed reading them at the meetings—always with a flourish! The SCC Board awarded her a Life Membership of the club in September 2021 for her many years of dedicated service.

Carol’s husband Fred relates that in chess she was a fighter. (She definitely benefited from having an expert tutor in the house!) She set a goal for herself to get to Class B status, and she achieved it in 2011 with a 1605 rating. During her chess career she had three wins against >2000 players (vs. about 50 losses). She won a game against Nakamura at the U.S. Open in Hawaii in 1998. No, not Hikaru, but his brother Asuka, an expert player in his own right. Her style? She liked to be active, but not too sharp in attacking. She was fond of playing the Four Pawns Attack against the King’s Indian, and she often played the Exchange Variation against the Grünfeld to get the big center. Recently she had been trying out the Accelerated Dragon as Black against 1.e4. Chad Boey commented that Carol was strongly devoted to the Queen’s Gambit when playing White. “You had to be careful—she could run you over with it!”

Fred says Carol was as feisty in life as she was in chess. He claims Carol was one of the first people to fly out of Sea-Tac after 9/11. She was off to the J.C. Thompson Memorial tournament in Dallas, which started on the 14th! Late in her life, when they would go to the hospital for tests and wound care, she would wave away the wheelchair offered.

She was going to march in on her own walker, thank you.

I have such fond memories of Carol Kleist from working with her on SCC matters over the past five years. She liked to speak German—there is a small group of German speakers around the club. As fractured as my German is, she loved it when I would spreche Deutsch with her. She loved singing the French national anthem, La Marseillaise. We would make a date to sing it together every Bastille Day. I sang it alone this year—Aux armes, citoyens! Hey, was that an echo I heard?

In Memory Of Carol Kleist

By Karen Schmidt

It was with great sadness that I learned of the passing of Carol Kleist, long time Seattle Chess Club (SCC) member and devoted wife of our Tournament Director (TD) Fred Kleist. I considered Carol a true friend and always looked forward to seeing her at Novice tournaments over the years, where she served as TD herself. Carol would have been 93 on August 19, 2022.

When I did a phone interview with Carol in early 2021, she had just retired from the SCC Board. Carol told me a bit about her life and her experiences in the local chess scene. Carol's mother and her four children were living in Baker, Oregon, their father having died of tuberculosis when Carol was five years old. Carol's high-school-age brother, Gene, taught her the rudiments of the game of chess. She was in elementary school, and he would call her in from playing outside to play chess with him.

When her mother died in 1941, Carol, age 12, moved to Seattle and lived with her older sister, who was 25 and worked at Boeing at the time. Carol majored in music at Cornish and got her music degree there. After Cornish, she also attended the University of Washington (UW) and majored in Philosophy. She later received her PhD in German at the UW. As a college student, Carol rented a studio in the Paramount Building downtown, where she taught piano lessons; she was also teaching music classes at Cornish. By virtue of teaching music classes and private lessons (and eventually selling her grand piano) Carol was able to travel to Germany in the 1950's, where she studied music. Piano and violin were her main instruments. She married a German journalist who spoke only German with her (although he also spoke English and had been a translator after the war).

After her return to the United States, she became a Teaching Assistant in the German Department at the UW and taught the first two years of German while she studied for her PhD. After completing the PhD, she had an opportunity to teach at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, but was not able to, as she had two small children at the time. She thought it better to stay in Seattle where she knew people. The children's father died before they were grown. Carol taught music, German and English in the Seattle Public Schools, at all three levels: first in middle school and then high school, and later fourth and fifth grades. As an orchestra teacher in the schools, she literally learned to play all the stringed instruments, as well as all the woodwinds and brass. In later years Carol was a member of the Bellevue Symphony, playing violin.

One day she picked up a chess book and began to read all about wonderful things like the King's Gambit and the Queen's Gambit Accepted. So, this is what her brother had been talking about when she was a child! She read on and was hooked. She visited the SCC where she met Fred Kleist. She told me that she fell in love with him in a parking lot one night, as he stood outside her car and expounded on the numerous variations of the Ruy Lopez, oblivious to the heavy rain pounding down on them! Thus, in 1985, she dropped out of the symphony and took up chess in a serious way. She was still doing full-time teaching and giving private piano and violin lessons at the time.

Carol was a Seattle Chess Club member since the 1980s, when the club was meeting in the Ravenna neighborhood. There she met Fred, who was club Tournament Director. (He still is.) After several years she joined the Board. Over the years Carol served as Secretary, Treasurer, and Co-treasurer, and as the informal "Helper with Everything Else" until she retired from the Board in early 2021. After getting her US Chess TD certificate, she often served as TD on Friday evenings if Fred was going to play in the Quads the next day; I always looked forward to her serving as TD for the quarterly Novice Tournaments, which my son Peter and I played in. Through discussions of chess and music and other topics, Carol and I became good friends. Once, she literally talked me out of dropping out of a tournament, as I cried on her shoulder in the hallway! (I had registered for the Novice with the intention of winning it, and I had just lost Round One to a nine-year-old boy. After her pep talk in the hall, I went on to win the next three games. She had wisely counselled me to just "play the board" and not pay any attention to who my opponent was.)

Carol still played piano for her own enjoyment. She spoke English and German and read French and a little Spanish and Greek. At age 65 she began auditing language and poetry classes at UW.

Carol remained actively playing online chess, on chess.com. Her chess.com daily rating ranged from 1600 to 1798. I am a bit lower on the rating scale and can honestly say that I never beat Carol in the several times we played over the years. I had been hoping that Carol and I would have a chance to play over the board again.

I had the great pleasure of a long phone chat with Carol's daughter Dani, who now lives in sunny Eastern Washington. We had a positive emotional connection while sharing memories and talking about her mother.

A couple of things stood out in my conversation with Dani: Carol emphasized truth, beauty and kindness—in her own life, and in bringing up her two children, Dani and her younger brother, Marcus. Carol had overcome huge adversities in life, growing up without a lot of money—and especially being orphaned at the age of 12. She instilled the belief in her children that you "can always attain your first priority in life." I always marveled at Carol's indomitable spirit and zest for life. Dani related that in recent times, Carol had to receive periodic shots in her eye for macular degeneration. The shots had to be given without anesthesia, and Carol was supposed to hold very still. Dani and I agree that this was a horrific scenario—and with my lifelong case of needle phobia I would probably have chosen to go blind—but Carol's philosophy was: "This is my opportunity to practice being brave."

Carol's nephew David Rupel also contributed detailed information about Carol's life and many accomplishments. David's dad, Gene Rupel, taught Carol to play chess when she was a little girl and taught his son David to play. David recalled how proud Carol was that he himself made the cut to play in the Washington State Championship four times in the later 1970s through the mid-1980s.

In 2002, Carol and David played in the U.S. Senior Open in Ventura, California (taking his dad Gene along for the ride)—and they played again along with Fred in 2004 in Boca Raton, Florida. Third and fourth trips to the Senior Open were taken in 2006 to Nashville, and 2009 to Indianapolis. In between rounds in all four cities, they took time to visit local sites of interest—the Santa Inez Mission, a tropical bird exhibit in Florida and the zoos in Nashville and Indianapolis.

In conclusion, I just want to say that Carol will be greatly missed by the local chess community, and certainly by her large extended family and her friends. I will look forward to writing more about her amazing life in a future issue of Northwest Chess. I am gratified to know that she lived such a long and zestful life—and was sharp as a tack even in her last days. I was grateful to learn that she passed peacefully at home and without pain over Memorial Day weekend. I hope that I too will be auditing classes at the UW into my seventies and playing chess (and music) into my nineties!

North Idaho Championship

By Adam Porth

We have a new “King of the North” and he ain’t a Stark! (Game of Thrones reference) Caleb Kircher, Nampa, won the tournament with a 4.5/5 points after upsetting our former kings, Ken Erickson and Michael Cambareri.

Despite the fact that the venue was not Winterfell, the Coeur d’Alene Library Community Room was a beautiful facility to hold a chess tournament for the 23 competitors. Players were from Texas, California, Washington, and Idaho. Many communities and clubs were represented. CDA Chess Club advisor Jim Maki stopped in to observe the competition and Jeremy Burnett even quipped, “I keep getting paired with Spokane Chess Club players!” I cheekily replied, “Well then, you should have lost to me.”

I would characterize this tournament as one of upsets. There were nine! That is a whopping 20% of the games! If you care about ratings... experts beware! The under-rated are finally starting to rise and this is great for everyone as the ratings will become a bit more accurate.

The tournament was G/45;d5 in order to accommodate library hours and it proved challenging and exciting to watch several games float with seconds for minutes due to delay and the shorter time controls. Players really needed to manage time. On board one, Michael Cambareri (over a minute) and Kenneth Erickson (five seconds) played nearly 20 moves in a blitzed ending that resulted in an exciting draw after Ken scooped up a king-rook fork in “stark” contrast to a Game of Thrones fork! In another part of the room, Cody Gorman had two seconds for nearly ten moves finally succumbed to Ryan Ackerman with Ackerman’s clock dwindling from three minutes to nearly 30 seconds. One game even went down to one second!

Caleb Kircher (1764) scored three upsets in this tournament. Cambareri (2025) fell in a king-bishop-pawn ending versus king’s and connected pawns in an interesting endgame with Kircher in round two. Erickson (1831) and Kircher amiably ended a draw in round three. And highly rated Daniel Oshima (1803) lost to Caleb in round four. In the last game, Dakota Wickel (1666) was hoping to score a second upset using the Fromm’s Gambit, but couldn’t beat the f4 opening that Caleb mustered.

The largest upset came from Nick Hunt (1394) versus Daniel Oshima (1803).

Caleb won $100, and Ken Erickson and Ryan Ackerman split the second and third place prize of $62.50. Michael Cambareri won a book donated by DeWayne Derryberry for fourth place. Two books from the Senior Master Dan Mayers collection were provided as raffle door prizes, won by Ryan Ackerman and Emilia Jansen.

“Winter is coming,” and so too are some high caliber tournaments in Spokane and Coeur d’Alene. The Eastern Washington Open will be held September 24, sponsored by Spokane Chess Club, and the ICA’s Norman Friedman Memorial will be played October 8-9 in Coeur d’Alene. Play more chess!

Longest Day Fundraiser

By Scotty Hohman

A local comedian and chess enthusiast Scotty Hohman noticed an advertisement on Facebook from the Alzheimer's Association that said Chess is a new activity that they were interested in having for fundraisers in 2022. While he had never competed in an over the board tournament, and was learning from his coach online, Scotty decided to work with the Alzheimer's Association to create a community chess-based event titled — "Scotty Can't Do Comedy Presents: Checkmate Alzheimer's" a rapid chess tournament that was single round elimination and bracket based on players approximate rapid ELO. The idea was to have an event that brought the community of chess players together to raise awareness for an important cause. It wasn't until later that Scotty would learn that he was the first in the nation to register with a fundraising through chess, with less than 20 other chess events registered at the time.

The Longest Day is the summer solstice (June 21) and is an important day for events that fundraise and support the Alzheimer's Association in their fight against Alzheimer's and Dementia. The amount of people who showed up to the event with stories of loved ones they either know or have lost due to the disorder was nothing short of inspirational. Between the chess event and the comedy show which followed, this community helped to raise $420 for the Alzheimer's Association.

In order to make prizes for contestants, he reached out to FIDE Master James Canty III, as well as National Master Nicholas Gross, to offer an hour of their time providing lessons to first and second places respectively. The attendance was significant and many people who were experienced, as well as people who played casually over the board or online with friends in attendance. While the more experienced players were initially thrown off by the set up and structure of the event, they were quick to help set up a playing area and ensure that games could be played smoothly. As for the results, our first-place winner was local Kenneth Erickson, a very talented and tactical player, second place was awarded to his opponent Eric Barnes.

Will there be a fundraiser next year? While we are still a full year away from knowing any specific details, Scotty hopes to work with the Idaho Chess Association, to have a proper tournament, likely with longer time controls, and Swiss pairing. In a statement about the event Scotty said this "It was a truly humbling experience overall. I planned to make this tournament an annual event when I started; however, there was certainly dismay with the pairings and structure of the event. I plan to work with the ICA and find a solution that allows for this event to be known across the area. A fundraiser so big, people will travel miles away to play in it. As I learn more about tournaments as well as ways to set up official and rated events, it is my hope that we can use the power of chess to not only bring the community together, but raise awareness and donations for a cause that so many people are impacted by."

Rusty Miller Memorial

By Josh Sinanan

The 2nd Annual Rusty Memorial Chess Tournament took place online via Chess.com on Father's Day/Juneteenth weekend, June 18-19, 2022. The event was held in honor of Russell "Rusty" Miller (1942-2020), the Godfather of Northwest Chess and longtime Washington State chess patriarch. This year's event featured a new six-round, double Swiss format, in which players faced each other twice during each round, once with white and once with black. The tournament was co-hosted by Northwest Chess and Washington Chess Federation under the direction of WCF Adult Chess Director Rekha Sagar. A total of five players participated remotely in one open section from cities throughout Washington State including Blaine, Redmond, Issaquah, and Bellevue!

Kai Marcelais, an eighth-grader from Willows Prep in Redmond, dominated the tournament with a phenomenal 12 points from 12 games, winning the tournament with two rounds to spare! Eighth-grader Kenneth Yuodelis from Tyee Middle School in Bellevue finished in second place with 8.5/12 points. Jai Budhraj, a fourth grader from Ella Baker Elementary School in Redmond, claimed the first place U1400 prize with 7.0/12 points. David Bradshaw from Blaine, the only player in the field old enough to have a driver's license, won the first U1200 prize with 4.5/12 points and was named the Best Dad Player for his efforts. Fifth grader Ayush Gupta from Challenger Elementary School in Sammamish won the first place U1000 prize with 4.0/12 points.

Congratulations to the winners, and many thanks to all who contributed to this fantastic event!

By some terrible quirk of fate, Gerald had been paired to the "Magician," for his first ever tournament.

2022 Washington Open Puzzle Solving Competition — sample solutions

Puzzles and solutions offered by Valentin Razmov (chess coach & WCF Tournament Coordinator)

1

Q: White to move and mate in 1.

A: 1.Nxh6#

2

Q: White to move and mate in 2.

A: 1.Bxg6+! Kxg6 2.Qg8#

3

Q: White to move and mate in 3.

A: 1.Qg6+!! Rxg6 2.Bg8+ Kh8
3.Nf7#

4

Q: White to move and give a forced checkmate. Give at least the first 2 moves and the idea.

A: 1.Rc8!! (decoying the black queen)
1...Qxc8 2.Bxb5+ Qd7 3.Bxd7+, and the rest is a simple & standard checkmating pattern: 3...Kd8 4.Bc6+
Kc8 5.Qd7+ Kb8 6.Qb7#

5

Q: White to move and win.

A: 1.Qh3 (the resulting double attack wins material or else leads to checkmate)

6

Q: White to move and win.

A: 1.Bxh7+ Kf8 (or 1...Kh8 2.Be4+)
2.Be4! Qxh1 3.Rxh1

7

Q: Black to move and win.

A: 1...Qg4! (relying on the pinned h3-pawn), preparing the sacrificial
...Rxh3+ with a forced checkmate.

8

Q: White is up some material, but their king is in danger. White to move and defend successfully.

A: 1.Nc5! (interference; this is the only move to avoid a loss) 1...Bxc5
2.Rxc5 Rxd2 3.Rxc7 g5 4.Rxb7, and the resulting rook endgame is approximately equal.

9

Q: White's queen looks surrounded from all sides. Black to move and trap that queen.

A: 1...Rdg8 2.Qxh6 Bg6! (cutting the queen's escape route toward the d6-square) 22.Qg5 f6 (completing the trap)

10

Q: Black to move and win. Give the first 2 moves and the idea.

A: 1...Rg1! (rescuing the pinned Ne2 or else winning material — in both cases Black ends with extra material)
2.Rxe2 Rd1+

11

Q: White to move and win. Give at least the first 2 moves and the idea.

A: 1.Qd5+ (or 1.Qc6+) 1...Rg2
2.Qe4! (putting Black in zugzwang, at which point they cannot avoid being checkmated.) 2...Kg1 3.Qe1#

12

Q: Black to move and win. Provide the first 2-3 moves and share the idea.

A: 1...Rb7! (activating Black's rook and king at once) 2.Ra2+ Kb5
3.Kxd5 Rd7+! (sacrificing a pawn but ensuring an entry for Black's king near White's remaining pawn) 4.Kxe4 Kb4 — and Black reaches a winning Lucena position soon after.

13

Q: Black is poised to infiltrate near White's king. White to move and prevent that.

A: 1.Ne4! (cutting the route to g4 for the black queen and forcing either a queen retreat or queen exchanges.
Note that even the obvious-looking 1.Qg5 fails to 1...Qg4!, followed by Black breaking through on the h-file.)

14

Q: Black to move and play the best defense. Give their first move and the idea.

A: 1...Nf6! (aiming for Nd5, a strong outpost for Black's knight, with powerful threats of a knight fork and a subsequent discovered attack via
...e4-e3)

Q: White has obvious areas of dominance. What plan can give Black the best counterplay? Give Black's first move and the idea.

A: 1...b5! (destabilizing White's central pawn structure and preventing the threat of e4-e5, while also activating with tempo Black's queen-side bishop, e.g., 2.cxb5 Bb7 (or 2.Rxb5 Ba6) (or 2.Ng3 bxc4 3.Bxc4 Nb6 4.Bb5 Bb7))

Q: Black to move. Which side is better and why?

A: The position is dynamically balanced: both sides are able to make threats that counterbalance one another, and both sides have to play active and precise moves to avoid losing. E.g., 24...d3! 25.Nb4! (not 25.Ne3? Na4) 25...dxc2 26.Nxc2 fxc6, with approximate equality.

Attempting to reorganize and perhaps begin a kingside attack later. Black can play this move for another reason — to follow it up with ...c6 and ...d5.

11.Re1 Ng6 12.Nf1 Be6 13.Ba2?!

13.a5

13...Qe7?!

13...d5 was possible and good, claiming space in the center.

14.Be3 Nd7 15.Ng3

Completing the defensive plan for White in response to Black's potentially aggressive intentions, e.g., preventing ...f7-f5 for the time being.

15...Kh8?!

Is Black preparing ...f7-f5 in some ways after all?

16.a5 Ba7?!

16...Bxe3

17.d4! Nf6 18.d5

Locks in White's light-squared bishop, turning it into a bad bishop for the time being. 18.Bb1 instead saves the bishop from an exchange and also forces Black's bishop to find a better square in the future, while maintaining pawn tension in the center.

18...Bg4 19.h3?!

Although this forces Black's bishop backwards (to d7), White does not want doubled pawns on the e-file, even though that prevents a future ...Nf4 by Black. White should instead have traded on a7 with a follow-up of 20.h3.

Mid-Year Scholastic Cup

By Josh Sinanan

The inaugural Mid-Year Scholastic Cup was held in-person June 11-12 at the Orlov Chess Academy in Redmond! The purpose of these events is to provide strong Northwest junior players with opportunities to develop their chess skills, especially as they transition to longer time controls. Chess players from throughout the greater Seattle region were represented in the 17-player field from cities including Seattle, Sammamish, Bothell, Redmond, Bellevue, Woodinville, Snoqualmie, Yarrow Point, Medina, and Issaquah! The event was hosted by Washington Chess Federation, directed by Senior TD Jacob Mayer, and organized by WCF Tournament Coordinator Valentin Razmov. The six-round Swiss over two days was split between the two sections: Rising (1200-1499) and Premier (1500+). Many thanks to Meiling Cheng and Valentin Razmov, our wonderful photographers, for taking pictures throughout the weekend. As usual in these prestigious junior events, the stakes were high. The highest finishing Washington player in the Premier 1500+ section earned a seed into the 2023 Washington Junior Closed, while the highest finishing Washington player in the Rising section earned free entry into the 2023 Washington Junior Open.

Congratulations to the winners, and many thanks to all who contributed to this amazing event! Final standings are listed in the table to the right.

My pet line. I like this because it grabs extra queenside space with tempo. However, this comes at a cost, since after 5...Bb6 6.d3, White's c3-pawn will be backward and will need attention.

19...Bd7 20.Bb3

20.Bxa7

20...Rfe8?!

It is unclear what that rook is going to do on the e-file in the near future. 20...Bxe3 21.Rxe3 (21.fxe3 Nh7 22.Nf5 Bxf5 23.exf5 Nh4 24.e4 g6) 21...Nf4 21.Ba4?!

21.c4 Bxe3 22.Rxe3 (22.fxe3 Nh7 This repeats the line from a move ago.) 22...Nf4±

21...Bxa4 22.Rxa4 Qd7 23.Ra2 Nf4 24.Qd2 Bxe3 25.fxe3 Ng6?!

25...N4h5

26.c4! c6

Position after 26...c6

27.Qd3?!

White now allows the c-file to open, which is unfavorable because Black occupies it first. 27.Rf1! The idea is that if 27...Rac8 28.Nh2 cxd5 there is the stunning positional exchange sacrifice 29.Rxf6!! gxf6 30.cxd5 after which White is much better due to the ruined Black kingside and the superb outpost on f5! Play might continue 30...Rg8 31.Ng4 Nh4 32.Qf2 Rg6 33.Kh2! Rc4 34.Rb2?! (34.Nh5! f5 35.Ng6) 34...f5 (34...Qd8 35.b5 Qxa5? 36.bxa6 Qxa6 37.Nh5) 35.exf5 Rgxf4 36.hxf4 Rxf4 37.Kh3! Rc4 38.e4 with some kingside chances for White. Black is still on the edge and must find only moves: 38...Ng6! 39.Nh5! Nf4+! 40.Nxf4 exf4 41.Qxf4 Kh7! 42.Re2 Qb5 (42...Rxb4 allows White quick infiltration on the g-file toward Black's king.; 42...Qd8? Here White also infiltrates on the g-file and has real chances to win. 43.f6!)

27...Rad8?!

Overly defensive idea and also a passive position for the Black rook. 27...cxd5 28.cxd5 Rec8

28.Rd1 cxd5 29.cxd5 Rc8 30.Rdd2?

The beginning of a wrong plan, giving Black the initiative on the queen-side.

30.Nd2 Ne7 31.Nc4 Rc7 32.Rf1

30...Rc7 31.Rac2?

31.Rdb2 Ne7 32.Nd2 Rec8 33.b5∞

31...Rec8

Suddenly the queenside is in Black's favor, and White isn't making progress on the king-side either.

32.Qb3 Qb5?!

32...Nf8!? reroutes the knight to a more useful square. For example, 33.Rxc7 Qxc7 34.Ne1 Qc1 35.Rd1 Qc3 36.Qxc3 Rxc3 when Black should win a pawn and his pieces will be active, unlike White's. Black would have good chances to win from this position.

33.Rxc7 Rxc7 34.Qb1?

Letting Black call the shots on the queenside. A sample alternative is 34.Rc2 Rxc2 35.Qxc2 Qxb4 36.Qc7 Nxe4 37.Qxf7 Nxe3 38.Qxg6 Ne4 39.Qg4 Qb1+ 40.Kh2 Nf6 41.Qc8+ Kh7 42.Nh4! Nxd5 43.Nf5! Qb5 44.e4 Nf6 45.Nxd6 Qxa5 46.Qf5+=

34...Qc4 35.Rd1?!

White has their back against a wall. 35.Rb2 Qc3 36.Rb3

Position after 35.Rd1

35...Qc2?

A serious positional mistake. Exchanging the queens can only favor White! Now White can look up, as Black's weak d6-pawn can become a beneficial factor in White's favor. One plan for White is to infiltrate along the b-file, with Rb1 and b5, forcing a pawn trade, followed by Rb6. Even though White loses his a-pawn in the process, he gets more than sufficient compensation by winning d6 and having a strong, passed d-pawn. 35...Qb5 36.Nf5 Qd7 and Black retains an edge.

36.Qxc2 Rxc2 37.Rb1! Kg8?!

37...Rc7 38.b5 axb5 39.Rxb5 Ne7 gives Black chances to hold the position, albeit passively.

38.b5! Ra2 39.bxa6 bxa6 40.Rb6 Rxa5 41.Rxd6 Kf8?

"Activating" the king is correct in principle, but here this walks into a crafty mating net, which actually turned out to not even be the strongest idea for White! 41...Ra3 keeps the pressure on White to prove his advantage, since Black will simply gobble up pawns or push his own passer. 42.Rd8+ Kh7 43.Kf2 Ra2+ 44.Kf1 a5 45.d6 a4 46.d7 a3! 47.Rh8+ Nxh8 48.d8Q Rb2! and, curiously, Black holds equality despite the temporary material imbalance due to their advanced a-passer and the poor position of White's king.

42.Rd8+ is more precise, according to the engines: 42...Ke7 43.Ra8 makes pushing and queening Black's a-passer tougher, while White will easily power their passer down the board at the same time.

42...Ne7??

Loses on the spot. 42...Ra1+ puts up a much stronger resistance by Black: 43.Kh2 Kg8 (forced) 44.Nxh6+ gxh6 45.Rxf6 Ra3 46.h4 Rxe3 47.h5 Nf8 48.Rxh6 Rxe4 49.Rxa6 and White has winning chances, but no guarantee of that result. 49...Rf4

43.Rd8+ Ne8 44.d6

44.Nd6 is cleanest and wins instantly. However, I had already seen and was set on queening the pawn via d5-d6-d7-d8Q.

44...Nxf5 45.exf5 f6

45...Rd5 46.d7 Rxd7 47.Rxd7 is the best Black can do. However, this is an elementary win for White as well.

46.d7 Ke7 47.dxe8Q#

I found this game very tough psychologically, because I needed to win in order to keep my lead in the standings and leave it up to the final round. Also, my opponent found nice ideas at several junctures which put me on a more defensive stance. I ended up drawing my final-round game, which gave me a big enough lead to win the tournament and thus be seeded into the prestigious 2023 WA Junior Closed!

The 2022 Ignacio Perez Memorial Northwest Chess Grand Prix

Murlin Varner, math guy

We have reached the half-way point of the year. Actually, one event beyond that, as the Seattle Chess Club July Quads (held July 2nd) are included in the stats below. At this point, we have had 520 entries from 290 Washington players, 65 entries from 32 Idaho players, and 51 entries from 46 players hailing from places beyond our realm. We are still not up to our pre-COVID levels, but not doing too bad, considering the absence of all Oregon events.

It looks to be a sleepy summer in Northwest Grand Prix chess, with just a few tournaments to talk about. First off, the weekly Grand Prix and FIDE rated events at the Chandra Alexis Chess Club in Boise are no more. They have been replaced with monthly events with rounds held every Monday at 5 PM. In July, there was also one Grand Prix/FIDE weekend event titled Time to Think, held July 8-11 in Boise. Elsewhere, there was the Seattle Chess Club Tornado on the 17th, and the Vancouver Open held on July 23 and 24. That event had a 3x multiplier. So, there you have it, only four events held in July, and only the Vancouver Open with a substantial number of players. Easy work for me.

In August, it will get even easier, as all events will have limited attendance. Along with the Chandra Alexis CC Monday night event in Boise (Ce Russe Impossible), there will be the usual SCC quads and tornado which are pretty much limited to 25 people or less. Then there's the Seattle Seafair Open (Aug. 6-7) and the Seattle Chess Classic (Aug. 13-17). In years past, these have been substantial events, both with nice multipliers. However, due to the fallout of the Covid years, the Seafair is limited this year to just 25 entrants and has no multiplier. The Seattle Chess Classic has a limit of 55 players and must use two different locations for the two sections. It does still offer a 3x multiplier.

Mark your calendars for two larger events before the end of the year. The Washington Class Championships will be held Thanksgiving weekend and should have a multiplier of 4x or higher. Then there will be the Mexinsurance FIDE Open in Boise on December 16-18. This event has a projected prize fund of $15,750, with over $10,000 guaranteed. This makes it the first 6x multiplier event since the 2019 Washington Class, and potentially the biggest payout in Northwest Memorial Grand Prix history (the previous high was the $13,000 Washington Open in 2019). Only thing bigger in our neck of the woods was the US Open held in Vancouver. (Sadly, I couldn't get them to agree to the Grand Prix fees.)

So, get out and play when you can. Still points to be had, still close contests in every rating class.
